main office where he was questioned by School Resource Officer Paesch. Ofc. Paesch noted that Beaumont appeared "out of it" and was in possession of a bottle of Methadone.

Twenty-five-year-old Beaumont told Ofc. Paesch that he was "bullied a lot" when he was a student there in 2002. He told Ofc. Paesch that he came back "to face his fears" and to "check out the security of the school."

Beaumont told Ofc. Paesch that he drove to the school that day and he ultimately granted Ofc. Paesch a consent search of his car. Ofc. Paesch discovered a handgun holster in the car. Beaumont told Ofc. Paesch that he forgot the holster was in the car and added that he does not have a gun.

Beaumont and Ofc. Paesch returned to the office and Ofc. Paesch called Beaumont's father, George Beaumont. George Beaumont told Ofc. Paesch that his son had been in the National Guard. Justin Beaumont then spoke with George Beaumont on the phone and Ofc. Paesch heard Justin Beaumont say to his father "You don't realize how much they bullied me back then."

While Ofc. Paesch was speaking on the phone with George Beaumont, Justin Beaumont got up and tried to open a door. Ofc. Paesch asked Beaumont what he was doing and he said "I'm an Iraqi War veteran and I forgot where I was for a second."

North County High School has numerous "No Trespassing" signs affixed to the outside of its building. There are also signs on every doorway which read "No Trespassing, Report to the Main Office."

Detectives later checked Justin Beaumont's gun-ownership records and learned that the following weapons were registered to him: 9mm Uzi, Bersa .380 caliber pistol, P3 .380 caliber pistol, Glock 19 9mm pistol, and an
